Mother Nature is also having a problem. The forest is too small for all the animals. The animals are starting to get crowded, and they're starting to fight with each other. Mother Nature needs to find a way to make the forest bigger, but she doesn't know how.

One day, Elsa and Mother Nature meet each other in the forest. They start talking about their problems, and they realize that they have the same problem. They both need more space.

Elsa and Mother Nature start brainstorming ideas for how to solve their problems. They come up with all sorts of ideas, but none of them seem to work. Finally, Elsa has an idea.

"I know!" she says. "We can move the forest to a new location!"

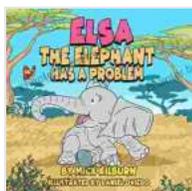

Mother Nature thinks about Elsa's idea for a moment. It's a crazy idea, but it just might work. She agrees to help Elsa move the forest.

Elsa and Mother Nature start gathering all the animals in the forest. They tell the animals about their plan to move the forest, and the animals are excited to help.

The animals all work together to move the forest to a new location. It's a long and difficult process, but they finally finish it.

Elsa and Mother Nature are so happy with their new home. The forest is now big enough for all the animals, and Elsa has plenty of room to roam.

Elsa and Mother Nature's story shows us that anything is possible if we work together. We can solve any problem if we put our minds to it.
