In this book, Knight, Berry, and DeJesus share their experiences of being held captive. They describe the physical and emotional abuse they endured, and the ways in which they coped with their trauma.

The book also provides a glimpse into the lives of the three women after they were rescued. They discuss the challenges they faced in readjusting to life outside of captivity, and the ways in which they have found healing and happiness.

This book is a must-read for anyone who has ever faced adversity. It is a story of hope and resilience that will inspire you to never give up.

About the Authors

Michelle Knight, Amanda Berry, and Gina DeJesus are the three women who were held captive in a Cleveland home for over a decade. They are now advocates for victims of human trafficking and sexual abuse.

Knight is the author of the memoir Finding Me: A Decade of Darkness, a Life Reclaimed. Berry is the author of the memoir Hope: A Memoir of Survival in Cleveland. DeJesus has not yet written a memoir, but she has spoken out about her experiences in interviews and public appearances.

The three women have received numerous awards for their advocacy work. In 2015, they were named Time magazine's Persons of the Year. They have also received the Congressional Gold Medal and the National Civil Rights Museum's Freedom Award.
